

GGS Sanctions Navigator Service

The GGS Sanctions Navigator Service is an expert political and business intelligence and corporate strategy and advisory offering in the field of international financial sanctions. David L. Goldwyn, President and founder of Goldwyn Global Strategies, LLC (GGS), an international energy consulting firm, and Elizabeth Rosenberg, a former senior sanctions advisor at the U.S. Department of the Treasury and independent sanctions and market consultant, together provide this service for Fortune 500 companies and institutional investors. From extensive direct experience formulating sanctions and energy policy, as well as from advising energy and banking senior management, we offer unparalleled and unique insights into energy markets and financial sanctions. We also understand the commercial implications of sanctions and can formulate strategies to help businesses and their leaders adapt and succeed in a rapidly evolving sanctions world.

Creating Value for Our Clients

The Sanctions Navigator Service is available on a consulting fee basis and is designed to explain the dynamic sanctions landscape. This includes the implications of new sanctions policy and regulatory developments and the web of officials crafting and enforcing these measures. Planning for allowable activities in sanctioned jurisdictions and crafting innovative approaches to new permissible transactions is core to our service offering. We also provide strategic planning guidance to craft strategies for engaging government officials on sanctions issues, particularly as related to energy market operations, transactions, and financing.

Our team works with the business development, investment portfolio management, operations, government relations, compliance, and legal teams of corporate clients to understand sanctions challenges and business opportunities. We identify viable strategies for success with our clients, including supporting development of compliance plans and counseling executives as they engage key U.S. government policy makers on sanctions.

Through face-to-face meetings and real time telephone briefings on legislative, regulatory, and policy considerations relating to sanctions and the energy sector, our team creates value for clients and a foundation for long-term success navigating this field. Subscribing to our service will give you and your company access to our team of analysts and experts.

Your Expert Team

Elizabeth Rosenberg is an independent financial sanctions and energy market consultant. She served as the senior sanctions advisor at the U.S. Department of the Treasury, where she helped to develop and implement banking and energy sanctions on Iran, Libya, Syria, and Cuba, as well as the unwinding of sanctions on Myanmar. With a background in energy commodity trading, and deep experience in energy policy analysis, she is a leading voice on the intersection of financial sanctions and energy markets. Rosenberg offers regular public testimony and private briefings to Members of Congress on banking and energy sanctions, as well as counsel to senior officials at the White House, Departments of State, Treasury, and Energy on strategies for implementing and unwinding sanctions.

David L. Goldwyn, President and founder of GGS, has nearly 15 years of international business, legal, diplomatic, and foreign affairs experience, including distinguished service as Special Envoy for International Energy Affairs at the Department of State (2009-11), Assistant Secretary of Energy for International Affairs (1999-2001) and national security deputy to U.S.

Permanent Representative to the United Nations Bill Richardson. As an energy market expert, he has extensive experience crafting effective strategies and policy to manage risk, securing licenses under financial sanctions regimes, resolving international commercial disputes and developing corporate social responsibility programs. In the course of this work he has operated at and with the highest levels of the White House, State Department, National Security Council, National Economic Council, Commerce, Defense, Export Credit, and Trade and Development agencies. As an external advisor, he has been entrusted with sensitive and confidential business information, helping corporate clients to formulate successful business strategies in an environment of dynamic legal, regulatory and policy constraints.
